

SCIENCE COMMUNICATIONS MANAGER

To promote the fields of natural science to the public for SACNASP

Tasks will include:

The development and use of high quality written and visual science content for a range of marketing, and communication purposes via digital and print media, including hard copy publications, advertisements, videos, presentations and web content for the organisation.

The applicant must have the ability to bridge the gap between science and the public

Competency Requirements:

- Good presentation skills
- Excellent interpersonal skills
- Computer literate including knowledge of Microsoft packages
- Confident
- Team player
- High level communication skills
- Web content management system
- Newsletter programs

Key responsibilities:

- Development and delivery of strategy to raise awareness of natural sciences in South Africa
- Interact with external stakeholders including Voluntary Associations, University students, research councils, industries, and institutions of higher education for promotion of natural sciences
- Development and use of high quality written and visual content for digital and print media for SACNASP including hard copy publications, advertisements, videos, presentation, and web content
- Web presence for natural science field

- Presence and promotion of SACNASP at marketing events held by SACNASP around South Africa

The Suitable incumbent will have:

- A Master's or PhD in natural sciences and eligible for SACNASP registration
- A science communication qualification will be an added advantage
- Minimum 3 years relevant experience in science communication, working with and reporting to governance structures and preferably government departments/public entities.
- Familiarity with social media, Research Gate and Google Scholar

Salary: R600 000 per annum (CTC)

Commencement: ASAP

To apply, forward your C.V. and covering letter to svanaardt@sacnasp.org.za copy to sabraham@sacnasp.org.za on or before 2 December 2022

These positions will comply with Employment Equity principles.
SACNASP reserves the right not to make an appointment.